CAPTAIN (Naval) JOHN S. MUCKLE

JOHN S. MUCKLE was born in Philadelphia, December 12th, 1862, and is the son of Col. M. Richards Muckle, who was for many years connected with the "Public Ledger," of Philadelphia, and the late Caroline Seiser, through whom he is a direct descendant of the "Pleis," "Remele," "Seiser" and "Unger" families, which were prominent in Germany, Switzerland and Bavaria as far back as the twelfth century.

Educated in Philadelphia at a German school, the Episcopal Academy, and the South Broad Street Military Academy, he served a four years' apprenticeship as a machinist, and after two years' experience as a constructing mechanical engineer, on January 1st, 1885, organized with his brother the engineering firm of M. R. Muckle, Jr., & Co., in Philadelphia. Of this firm he is still a member.

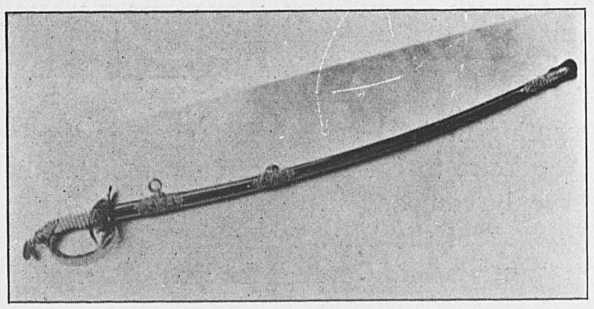
In February, 1898, he was commissioned commander of the Pennsylvania Naval Militia, and at the beraking out of the Spanish-American War was appointed (June, 1898) Lieutenant in the United States Navy. In October, 1898, he was honorably discharged from the service, and again assumed command of the Naval Militia.

A very short time in the United States Naval service convinced Captain Muckle that the various State Naval Militias should be directly under the Navy Department, or in other words, that a National Naval Reserve should be created. After a careful study of the situation and of the Royal Naval Reserve System of Great Britain, he forwarded to the Navy Department (by permission of the Secretary of the Navy), in July, August, and September, 1898, plans for the formation of such a reserve. Four months later (November, 1898), a bill was formulated by Congress by the Navy Department, which is said to be practically on the lines laid down by him.

In June, 1899, the Governor of Pennsylvania promoted him to Naval Aide on his staff, with rank of Captain (Naval). This position, ranking with Colonel, was created by the Legislature of Pennsylvania in the Spring of the same year, he being the first to hold the position.

The "North American," of Philadelphia, on October 2d, 1899, published an article by him on the question of the "National Naval Reserve," and at the request of the Hon. George E. Foss, Chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs, House of Representatives, Captain Muckle will appear before that Committee on behalf of the bill.

He is the patentee of several inventions, a member of the Franklin Institute and Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the Merion Cricket Club at Haverford, Pa., the Art Club of Philadelphia, and the Philadelphia Yacht Club. He is one of the Managers of the Pennsylvania Seamens' Friend Society, a member of the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish-American War, Naval Order of the United States, and Military Order of Foreign Wars of the United States, and holds a United States Pilot's and Engineer's license.



POTTER 'TROPHY."

THE POTTER "TROPHY."

Last May, Colonel Thomas Potter, Jr., Quartermaster General of the State, conceived the idea of offering a prize to the Regimental Quartermaster having the neatest and best laid out camp at Mt. Gretna. Captain L. L. Roney, Quartermaster of the Fourth Infantry, was the fortunate winner of this prize. He was untiring in his efforts to bring this about, and probably would have had his camp laid out in the same condition without the competition; however, he went into the contest to win, and the judges in awarding the trophy, paid him a well deserved compliment.

CAPTAIN AND QUARTERMASTER, L. L. RONEY,
4TH INFANTRY
Winner of the "Potter Trophy" for the best laid out Regimental Camp.

The sabre is a handsome piece of work, the blade being of the finest Damascus steel, beautifully chased. The grip is of white snake skin, and the hilt surmounted by a gold plated eagle. The guard, bands and rings are of richly chased gold, and with the heavy nickel plating of the scabbard, brings out a magnificent effect.

Captain Roney's first military experience was during the Pittsburgh riots in 1877, when he enlisted in Company "D," of the Fourth Infantry. In 1878 he was promoted to Corporal, and later on to Sergeant, and in the different grades of the non-commissioned positions he served for eight years. Much against his wish he left the Regiment, owing to impaired sight. Colonel O'Neill and Captain Roney served in the same Company. When Colonel O'Neill was finally elected to the Colonelcy, he tendered the position of Captain and Quartermaster to his chum, who had carried the rifle alongside of him for many years. Mr. Roney accepted the appointment and was commissioned as Captain, November 28th, 1899.

His principal points in laying out the camp were first to get a correct alignment; the second was driving all stakes before the canvas was put up, and in the third place he was particularly careful to have all ropes properly placed in accordance with regulations. Perhaps the best instruction in this case was to carefully view and examine the sample tent put up by Colonel Richardson at the State Arsenal.

In addition to his ability as a Quartermaster, he is becoming quite a crack shot. Last year he qualified as a second-class marksman with a score of thirty-nine. During this season he made a score of forty-nine as first-class marksman, and finally became a sharpshooter with a credit of sixty-nine points out of a possible seventy-five.

Captain Roney was born and raised in Allentown, and at an early age he left school and assisted his brother, who was then engaged in a shoe factory. Later on he accepted a position as clerk with A. Pardee & Co., at Hazleton, finally returning to Allentown and renewing his interests in the shoe business. After becoming thoroughly familiar with the different departments in manufacturing children's and misses' shoes, he formed the firm of Roney & Berger, which to-day stands out pre-eminently in the trade.

GUNSTER & FORSYTH.

The firm of Gunster & Forsyth, 345-327 Penn Avenue, Scranton, who have been awarded the contract for the plumbing, tinning and cornice work for the Thirteenth Regiment Armory, are peculiarly identified with the Regiment. Mr. Henry J. Gunster, the senior member of the firm, is one of the original Scranton City Guards and for many years shot on the Regimental and Brigade teams. When the Battalion was in its infancy and desirable recruits were scarce, he was untiring in his efforts to secure good material for his old Company "A."

The military spirit in the Gunster family has always existed, and ever since 1877, a "Gunster" has been on the roll of the Thirteenth Pennsylvania. Mr. George Gunster, whose cut appears on page 4, will have entire charge of the contract. He has been General Superintendent of the firm for the past ten years, and he is justly proud to have the opportunity of supervising the work on the coming fortress of his old command.

First Lieutenant and Battalion Adjutant Walter E. Gunster, is a younger brother of Henry J. and George Gunster. He is at the present time serving the Regiment with distinction.

Mr. Forsyth, while not identified with the Regiment in an active sense, has always been regarded as one of its strong supporters, and is always ready to serve its best interests as a civilian admirer.

CAPT. THOMAS H. P. TODD

Acting Assistant General Inspector of Rifle Practice, Mt. Gretna.

FIFTH REGIMENT NOTES.

The marksmanship decorations for 1899 have just been received by the Regimental Inspector of Rifle Practice.

Co. "D," of Blairsville, is the first company in the Regiment to report all the members of the company as having qualified for 1900.

The question of increasing the Regiment to a 12-company organization is still exciting considerable comment.

The various companies of the command are settling down to work again, and nearly all of them have resumed the regular weekly drills, and one or two companies are at the drill twice a week. Capt. Creede, of Co. "D," is making an effort to have the best company in the division at the coming spring inspection, and has been drilling right along ever since returning from camp with that object in view.

A circular letter has been sent to all the company commanders urging them to complete the qualification of their companies, to take active measures to get men to drill and if possible to have semi-weekly drills, and urging them to be prompt with their quarterly returns.

A branch recruiting station for the regular army is now open and doing business in the headquarters office. Thus far it has had 10 applicants, but nearly all have failed to pass the examination.

In commenting upon the inspection report in the last issue of the Journal, we desire to correct an error in the statement of percentage. The only company in the First Brigade receiving over 90.00 was Co. "K," of the First Regiment (Captain Hess), whose rating was 91.35, in place of Co. "I," the latter Company having received 89.00.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL A. L. WILLIAMS

Lieutenant Colonel A. L. Williams, late First Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and at present the senior Major of the State, is widely known throughout the United States, having been for many years identified as the Superintendent of The Union League of Philadelphia, and was brought in contact with the leading men of the country, who in many instances became his personal friends.

When quite a lad and during the trying times of the Civil strife of the country, he induced a recruiting officer to take him as a drummer boy. Unfortunately his father did not agree with the plan, and he was compelled to forego his great ambition to serve the country in the dark days of the Rebellion. The military inclination stayed with him, however, and away back in 1872 he joined the Artillery Corps Washington Grays,which is now Company"G"of the First Regiment.

After going through the several non-commissioned grades, he was elected Second Lieutenant, and in October, 1882, he became the First Lieutenant. In January, 1884, he was elected Captain and held that position until August, 1892, when he was unanimously elected Major of the Regiment, which position he still holds. During the Spanish-American War he received a United States commission as Lieutenant Colonel of the First Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and as such was mustered out with his Regiment.

WHEN Surgeon General John V. Shoemaker told Governor Stone that a second review of the troops at Camp Hawkins would prove disastrous, owing to the intense heat, and that many men were likely to jeopardize their lives, and that the newspapers would be sure to take the matter up and criticise severely such a review, he expressed an opinion which not only pleased Governor Stone but was heralded throughout camp, and made him the most popular man in Mt. Gretna for the time being.

WHEN a recent General Order was issued, it practically wiped out of existence the remnant of what at one time constituted a so-called Regiment. While the "officers" were honorably discharged, it is needless to say that several of them were not fitted for the Guard. The holding of these gentlemen in commission for so long a time after the disbandment of the companies was owing to the fact that many of their equipments were lost or stolen which the State desired settled before releasing their bondsmen. The National Surety Company of New York did everything in its power to straighten the matter out, but finally gave up in disgust and settled with the State at an expense of $1,500.00.

MR. HENRY B. GROSS is the donor of several prizes to be competed for by Company teams of five men each from the First Brigade, the contest to take place the last week of October. Major Chew, the ordnance officer of the First Brigade, and acting Inspector of Rifle Practice, has been very successful in securing so many valuable prizes in the interests of rifle practice this season. The Major is untiring in his efforts to develop new marksmen in this department.

IT IS proposed in the near future to organize an association to be composed of Inspectors of Rifle Practice, the object being to promote the efficiency of the department throughout the State. In the First Brigade an effort will be made to purchase the First Regiment Rifle Range and greatly improve it. Failing in this, a piece of ground will be purchased, upon which will be erected a suitable clubhouse, where each organization will have its own room, with lavatory and other conveniences attached.

Citizens may become contributing members of the association by paying a fee of $5.00 per year, and this will entitle them to all the privileges of the Range.

A PROJECT is on foot whereby it is intended to build a combination Armory for the Third Infantry and the Second Troop Philadelphia City Cavalry. The location is near Broad and Washington Avenue, and it is intended to construct the Armory similar to that of the Seventy-first New York, the Troop using the ground floor, with the entrance on Fifteenth Street, and the Regiment on Broad Street.

While the matter is somewhat premature, several of the progressive officers believe that with the sale of the old property and a liberal appropriation by Councils, the plan is perfectly feasible.

THE condition of the artillery arm is far from being satisfactory. It is stated that Captains Wallace and Bean at the late encampment very much displeased with the peculiar orders issued requesting them to turn out their Batteries for dismounted parade, and also prohibiting the Batteries to take part in the division review. Rumor has it that some very interesting views were exchanged between General Gobin and General Stewart, and that some of the orders were countermanded and the Batteries ordered to take part in the review. Two sections of Battery "C" were then detailed to Captain Wallace's command, and it thus appeared that the old Griffin Battery was consolidated with the Hampden and paraded under the latter's guidon, "B."

Important changes are anticipated in this branch of the service, so that the arm will be thoroughly reorganized by the next encampment.

THE handicap which has heretofore existed with Cavalry teams competing in Regimental and Brigade matches will be done away with, as this arm of the service will have its separate contests in the future. Men composing troop teams were obliged to shoot with the Springfield rifle, when their arm is a carbine. This naturally necessitated the handling of two pieces and greatly decreased their chances of success.

Personal Mention

Lieutenant Hugh Craig, Jr., proposes to offer a consolation prize next year which will be contested for by the "tail enders."

Captains Kanbeck and Stokes, of the Thirteenth Infantry, are the next candidates in the event of a vacancy for the "Gold Oak Leaf."

This year's team of the Fourteenth Infantry, is the best ever presented by the Regiment. We would not be surprised to see them a "winner" next season.

Captain Leon Dagit, of the Sixth Infantry, Fencibles' Battalion, intends remaining in the service. We are glad to note this decision on the part of the Captain, as he is a well posted and popular officer, and Colonel Coryell can illy afford to lose officers of this stripe.

Private William S. Sloane, who is on the Regimental team of the First Infantry, was formerly First Lieutenant of Company "D," and resigned that position in order that he might be able to shoot on the team. He, in all probability, will be re-elected to his old position this Fall.

At the ceremonies incidental to the unveiling of the monument erected to the memory of the lamented General Alexander W. Hawkins, Colonel of the Tenth Infantry, the officers and members of Col. Barnett's command propose having the Third Infantry, of Philadelphia, present as their guests.

While the Sixteenth Regiment team did not do near as well as expected at the State shoot, we can confidently say that they represent the finest shots in the State, and it might be imprudent for Colonel Hulings to attempt any changes. Several members of the team should eliminate their over confidence and get down to an easy and gradual gauging of the new targets.

The suggestion of Lieutenant Frank C. Mueller, Commissary of the First Infantry, that the State own its own wagon transportation, is a good one, and in addition to the mule teams, a sufficient number of baggage and gondola cars should be included in the State property, so that there would be adequate facilities for not only handling equipage, but Commissary's and Quartermaster's stores as well.

We regret to learn that Lieutenant Colonel George W. Wallace, of the Ninth Infantry, contemplates resigning. The Colonel has been in the Guards for many years and has served it faithfully, and is regarded as one of the best field officers in the service to-day. Pressure of business is given as the cause of his withdrawal. In the event of a vacancy, Majors Sharp and McKee are mentioned as candidates for the position. Major McKee seems to be the popular choice of the "line," and in all probability will be the wearer of the silver oak leaf.

Several Companies of the Sixth are in a chaotic condition, and it is rumored that unless great changes take place in these organizations for the better, their letters are likely to be transferred to other towns. Conshohocken, for instance, is making a strong bid for a military Company. For many years, Company "C," of the Sixth Infantry, was located there. Several gentlemen attached to the leading industrial establishments in this place who formerly held commissions in the United States Army, are willing to accept a State commission and organize a Company of good personnel.

The prospective Armory-Auditorium scheme in Pittsburgh for the Fourteenth and Eighteenth Regiments and Battery "B," seems to be in a dormant condition. It is surprising how these organizations manage to maintain their men with the ramshackle structures they occupy. It has been suggested that an active and aggressive committee be appointed comprising Major General Miller, General Wiley, Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh, the President and a member of Councils, three energetic business men of Allegheny County, three commanding officers of the organizations interested, two members of the Duquesne Grays Veteran Corps, and a like number of the Grand Army of the Republic.

With a representative committee like the above, good results would surely be obtained.

Colonel James B. Coryell and Major Charles F. Lumb are using their best endeavors to have the City Councils transfer the lease of the Fencibles' Armory to the Third Battalion of the Sixth Regiment. This, however, seems impossible, as the old Fencibles' are a chartered organization, and the City of Philadelphia are only the party of the first part to the lease with the corporation of the Infantry Corps State Fencibles, parties of the second part.

There are now four full companies of the Fencibles organized, and strong efforts will be made to have Colonel Coryell accept them in his Regiment in the event of the disandment of the Media, Doylestown and Phoenixville companies.

In this manner the Sixth would eventually become a State Fencible Regiment, which Major Chew and others strived to secure many years ago.

COMMUNICATION FROM COLONEL SAVAGE.

Colonel Richard Henry Savage, President of the United States Volunteer Association, writes under date of August 27th, from Chattanooga, Tennessee:

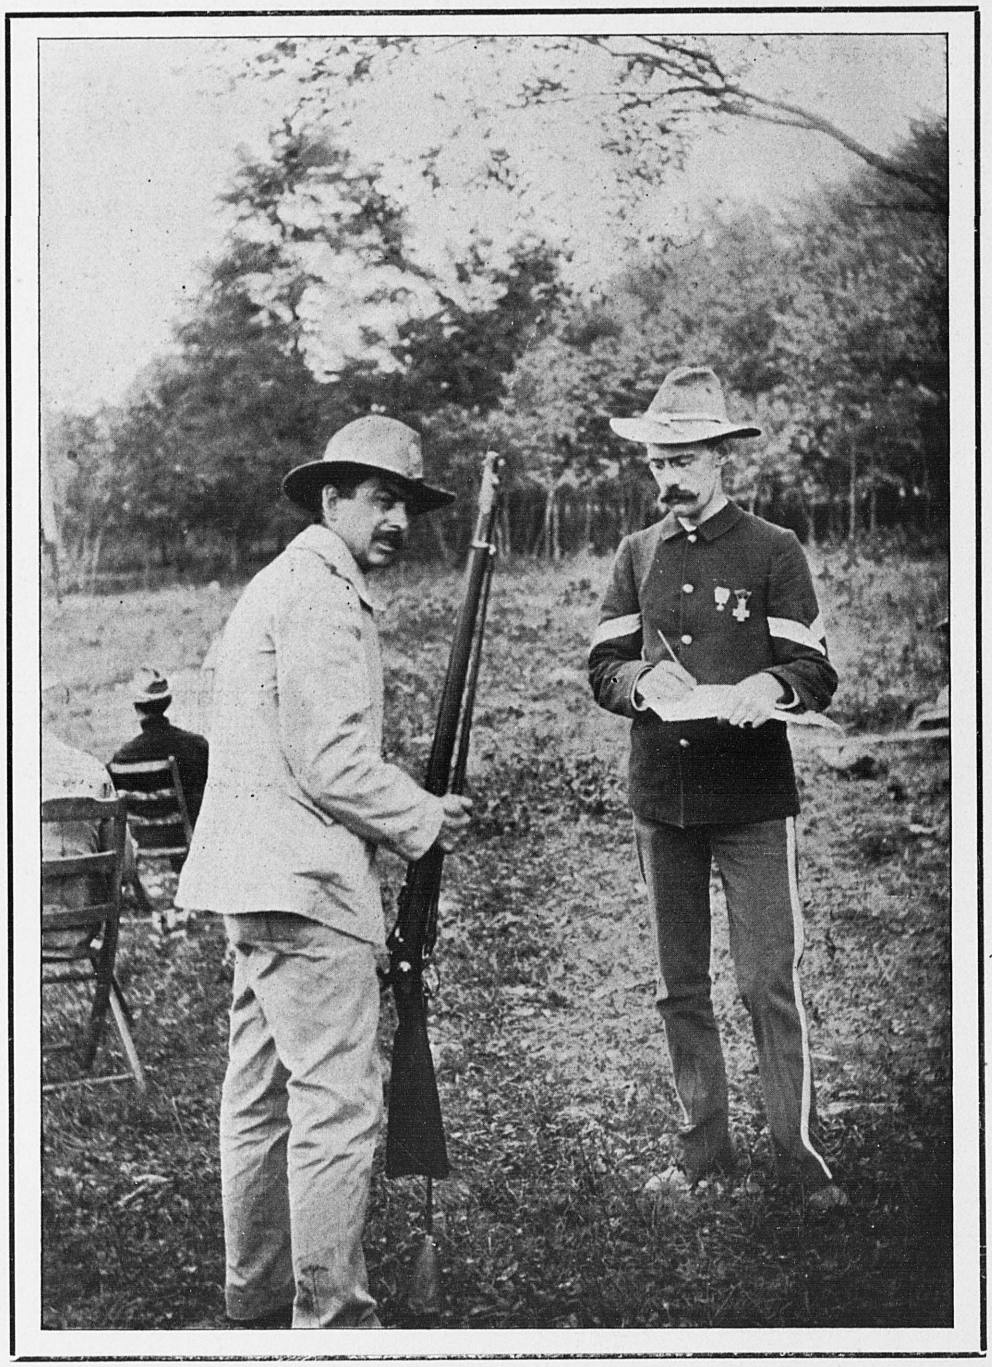
"The time has come for union, united effort and agitation, in order to secure for the American Volunteer, whether officer, "noncom" or private, their just deserts. This vital question reaches every member of the Army, Navy or Marines, Naval Reserves and the General Corps enlisted in 1898 and 1899. The time comes soon when twenty-five decimated Regiments of Volunteers will be brought back from the Philippines and cast ashore at San Francisco.

What is needed is the strength which comes from union and association to perpetuate our comradeship and obtain justice for the living and dead. For the soldier stricken by disease, for the widow and orphan and for the discharged veteran. This can only be done by the immediate formation of a union embracing all comrades. It must not be one which demands a score of veterans assembled to begin a post or camp. It must be a National Business Association which every man (duly qualified) can join, whether on land or sea, in the service or out, at home or abroad, rich or poor, whether alone in a cabin or in the great city. Its work should reach the scattered comrades wherever our flag flies.

The Mexican War veterans slept twenty-five years before acting for their rights! Nearly all died without relief! Early action by the G. A. R.—thanks to its founder and to the heroic Logan—brought that grand order into a successful attitude for thirty years! And now, we of the United States Volunteer Association, ask our comrades to help us to strike while the iron is hot—before we are dead and forgotten.

Our country never got glory so easily, and the unexampled victories, the downfall of Spain—our proud place to-day in the military world—is only due to the American Volunteer. The Volunteer officers and soldiers, wounded, worn out and broken down through their service in the Spanish-American and Philippine Wars, should be placed on the same basis of benefits and retired rank and pay as the "Regulars," for equal sufferings and final wreckage of life, "grade for grade."

It is necessary to show a united front to obtain what is best and to govern the workings of a strong society, conducted effectively, to every man deserving of governmental or state relief, whether medical attendance, pension, back pay, or soldier's home."



The above illustration shows Major William P. Clarke, Ordnance Officer of the 3d Brigade, assisted by a Sergeant of the 12th Regiment team "weighing in pieces," (which means that the trigger of each rifle shall pull not less than six pounds) just before the Brigade teams started to shoot. A good joke was on Lieut. Thomas Connely of the 16th Infantry, who suggested the weighing. He was the first to come up for test. The rifles of both he and his son were found deficient of the standard pull. This necessitated an immediate adjustment, and the boys had a good laugh on Connely.

Through the efforts of Major W. P. Clarke, Ordnance Officer of the 3d Brigade, two handsome bronze medals were secured for the marksmen of the Brigade at the State matches.

The Regiments comprising the 3d Brigade propose offering a prize of this kind annually. One is to be awarded to the member of the Brigade team making the best average of the week at known distances; two, five and six hundred yards. The other medal will be awarded to the individual making the highest skirmish score.

The medals are beautiful in design, as will be seen by the illustrations.
